

ADDING FRIENDS OR 'FRIENDS OF FRIENDS'?

DO THE HOMEWORK!

We often add friends online because it looks like they're on the friends list of someone we know ... they must be ok, right? That friend might have added a random person because one of their friends did, maybe they blindly liked their profile picture or came across them on a gaming platform.

It's wise to do some detective work with someone you have no IRL experience with.

Do their pictures look genuine?

Do they have pictures with people you already know?

Can they tell you how they know your friend?

IF IN DOUBT, CHECK IT OUT ...

Better to leave someone hanging for a couple of days than invite a troll or a creep into your socials.
