

Idaho didn't claim he was an expert in anything (unlike Flint and Raven) but he was wise for a young yeti and liked to think things through. He knew that if he really worked hard on a problem, and tried lots of different ideas, he was bound to solve it in the end.

He wanted to be a detective when he grew up, investigating mysteries, cracking codes, and finding out the answers to tricky problems.

What are those two fur-balls doing, they're both soaked?

Flint ???
Raven ???

